Some may find test scores troubling

New tests expected to bring lower scores

Results from Kentucky's new and more comprehensive state-wide tests will be released, Friday, Nov. 2, and Gallatin County Superintendent of Schools Dot Perkins says some parents and students may be disappointed with what they see.

"The biggest concern is that some students who were ranked 'Distinguished' under the old assessment testing system may now be listed as 'Proficient' or even 'Apprentice' in the new system," said Perkins. "This will be difficult for parents to understand and may make some students, parents and even teachers and administrators uncomfortable. We expect this and embrace it. These new assessment results are the starting line, not the finish line."

Many reading and math test scores will be lower than what parents are used to because of higher standards and longer, more difficult tests, explained Kentucky Education Commissioner Terry Holliday.

"Parents should expect a drop but they shouldn't panic," said Holliday. "It's all about helping our kids be ready for the global marketplace where they're going to have to compete."

"What we are teaching is more rigorous and challenging than ever before and it comes at a time when funding is being cut and ripped out from under us," said Perkins. "We have always risen to the challenge and we will again. We continue to see growth in our ACT scores and that means the number of students who are college and career ready when they graduate is increasing."

Officials caution parents from comparing this year's results to last year's because the tests are very different. "What we have done is establish a new baseline," said Holliday.

Last year's results showed 71.9 percent of Gallatin County's elementary school students were Proficient in reading and 63.9 percent were Proficient in math. In the Middle School, 64.3 percent of the students were Proficient in reading and 55.5 percent were Proficient in math. In the high school, 50.4 percent were Proficient in reading and 41.7 percent were Proficient in math.

The new scores to be released on Nov. 2, are the result of tests in reading, math, science and social studies that students in grades 3-12 took in May. Scores in social studies, science and writing should be in line with previous years because the content has not changed in those subjects.

Perkins said principals and teachers are anxious to see how their students fared even if the scores in reading and math are lower than in the past. The schools received the test results last week to give officials time to review them before they are released to the public.

The previous testing system (the Commonwealth Accountability Testing System or CATS) had an objective of simply getting students to academic proficiency. It was replaced with Unbridled Learning, a testing system that focuses on students' college and career readiness in an attempt to ensure their success after high school.

"The new scores will show we have things to celebrate and things to be concerned about," said Perkins. "Nevertheless, our school system is more than just test scores. We provide many more services and opportunities to our kids than just testing. We will never give up on any of our children. We work hard every day to improve the quality of life our students, which in turn, improves the quality of life for our entire community. We finally have facilities that are comparable to any other district in the state. We believe our children deserve this and we owe it to them to help them be college, career and life ready."

Perkins said the scores would be analyzed at a joint meeting of the Board of Education and Site Based Decision Making Councils (SBDM) on Nov. 12.

Kentucky issues Tax Amnesty

This is a perfect time to pay back-taxes owed to Kentucky.

The commonwealth has instituted a "Tax Amnesty" period through November 30, during which all penalties and fees will be waived for delinquent taxpayers. This is the first such program in ten years and is a good time to take care of old tax bills.

The amnesty offer is expected to bring in about $56 million for Kentucky. A similar program in 2002 netted $41 million.

Taxpayers often get into trouble after suffering such life-altering events as divorce, bankruptcy, or job loss. When this happens, individuals sometimes skip filing state taxes, in hopes of better times in the future. They may even forget. Either way penalties and interest can pile up fast.

"It's not uncommon," said state spokesman Pamela Trautner. "People just forget to file it because they have a life issue and once they forget to file they are scared to do anything thereafter."

Amnesty could also benefit those who formed businesses that failed and for which they did not file returns.

And this is the perfect time to fix either situation.

For more information, check the amnesty website at: amnesty.ky.gov or call 1-855-KYTAXES (598-2937).

Drivers warned to be alert for deer on roads

Autumn is in full swing and the Kentucky State Police warn drivers that along with colorful foliage comes an increasing likelihood they will find deer on the highways.

In addition, gun season for deer begins Nov. 10, which always puts more deer on the move and often on the roads.

"It's extremely important to recognize this ever-present risk this time of year when about 50 percent of all deer collisions occur," said Kentucky State Police Sergeant Rick Saint-Blancard.

Last year in Kentucky, there were 2,938 reports of deer struck by motorists and three of those collisions caused fatalities. Across the nation last year, there were about one million deer-related crashes that killed near-

Watch out for those Ghosts and Goblins

Trick or Treating for all Gallatin County communities will take place from 6 to 8 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 31.

To ensure a safe Halloween, parents are warned to make sure costumes are flame resistant, to attach reflective tape to costumes and bags, to remove tripping hazards from sidewalks and porches, to inspect all candy before it's eaten and make sure all children are accompanied by an adult.

Is your Halloween costume ready?

This and That

By Kelley Warnick
Editor

So, what are you going to be on Halloween?" a woman asked Friday night as I waited in line to get a seat at Jewell's on Main restaurant.

I didn't have a clue but I thought about her question when I got home that evening.

I know you're supposed to look spooky on Halloween but I don't want to terrify anyone. That's why you won't see me dressed up like an IRS agent, a politician or a gallon of gasoline.

It might be fun to look like a famous athlete for a few hours on Halloween night. I could find some temporary tattoos and jewelry to wear but one thing bothers me. I'm afraid the fake needle marks on my arm might make my buddies think I've turned to performance enhancing drugs to improve my golf game.

I suppose I could be a dog for a night but I'm not sure what breed would be best. Beagles and Golden Retrievers are too friendly for Halloween. Jack Russell Terriers and Chihuahuas are too hyper, Pit Bulls look too mean and Boxers seem too schizophrenic.

I thought about some other animals too. Pigs are too smelly, cows are too big and birds are too nervous. A woman I know says I'd make a good monkey but I don't agree. I can't walk on my hands, scratch my head with my feet or catch flies out of the air.

I suppose I could be a celebrity but that's not as easy as it sounds. I'm too tall to be Tom Cruise or Brad Pitt. I don't have enough hair to be George Clooney, Justine Timberlake or Matthew McConaughey. I also can't sing like James Taylor, play the guitar like Eric Clapton or dance like Mick Jagger.

I'm also too manly to dress up like Lady Gaga, Angelina Jolie or Pamela Anderson. Besides, women's underwear makes me nervous.

There are other costumes I'm ruling out all together. There are already too many ghosts, skeletons and goblins walking around on Oct. 31. My brother says he's going to be Frankenstein so that won't work for me. Blood makes me queasy so I can't be Dracula and the moon won't be full so the Wolfman is out.

I'm glad I still have a few days left to make up my mind because Halloween has always been my favorite holiday. I like it because it doesn't have the stress that goes along with gift giving. Besides that, I don't have to cook a big meal, go to a relative's house or send out a bunch of cards. All that's required on the big day is loading up on candy and howling at the moon. That's a celebration I can applaud.

Now that I've narrowed my options, the decision is getting a little easier. Halloween costumes are supposed to be scary so, this year, I think I'll dress up like one of those big hurricanes that blow in from the ocean. The good thing about being a hurricane is that it probably won't take much effort. Some people say I'm already full of hot air.

Former U.S. Senator Ford supports Hammons

Dear Editor:

It was my honor and privilege to have served the citizens of this Commonwealth for four decades, most recently as your U.S. Senator.

I am proud to support the candidacy of Wanda Crupper Hammons for State Representative in the 61st District. I have been acquainted with the Crupper family throughout my time in public service. Wanda has learned service from some good people. There are none better than Clay and Mary Crupper.

I began my career by following my father's footsteps into the General Assembly. That background gave me a leg up and a good start in serving the people who elected me. With the help and guidance of Rep. Royce Adams and Clay Crupper, Wanda has some outstanding mentors.

As a professional firefighter and EMT, Wanda has demonstrated commitment to serving. She will show up and help you when you need help. This is the sort of legislator we need in Frankfort. She will bring a needed fresh perspective and leadership to Frankfort.

I ask that you join me in supporting Wanda Crupper Hammons for State Representative on November 6.

ty government. Brian will work to reduce wasteful government spending, cut taxes and protect our 2nd Amendment rights.

He supports veterans and our fighting women and men. He is a pro-life conservative candidate. He will work to attract businesses to Kentucky and create new jobs. Brian has proven to be a principled politician who will listen to the people.

Adkins endorsed for Congress

Dear Editor:

Bill Adkins is for 100 percent of the 4th Congressional District and Kentucky. His opponent, Thomas Massie, is for special interests throughout the U.S. and ignores you and me.

Bill Adkins' top priorities are to fight for jobs, seniors, the middle class and veterans. Thomas Massie wants to cut funding for everything.

Bill Adkins will keep Social Security and not privatize it. That would be the beginning of the end of Social Security. And he will not vote to do away with Medicare.

Bill Adkins wants everyone to have access to affordable health care. Thomas Massie wants to eliminate it.

Thomas Massie wants to do away with government interference. Some say that is a good thing but be careful what you wish for. We all want clean air, clean water and safety. Thomas Massie want to do away with regulations on food processors. How clean do you think our food products would be if no one was watching?

Thomas Massie was only on his elected job 17 months when he quit because he could not handle his job and run for office. Bill Adkins has been doing both.

Thomas Massie refused to debate Bill Adkins. He returned Adkins' invitation unopened with "Refused" written on it. We need Bill Adkins in the 4th Congressional Dist.

Kentucky Commentary

Andy Barr is lying about Ben Chandler

In their effort to unseat Democrat-ic Rep. Ben Chandler in Kentucky's 6th Congressional District, Republican Andy Barr and his allies are gaining ground by telling lies.

Meanwhile, Barr's biggest ally, the coal industry, is facing some hard truths. And that could mean harder times for the Central Appalachian coalfield and more challenges for all of Kentucky.

Barr has been running an ad that was misleading to the point of untruth. Chandler ran a television commercial calling Barr's ad featuring a Western Kentucky coal executive "a big lie" because the executive was masquerading as a miner.

The executive has been a miner, and has maintained his certification, but in the long-standing language of coal mining in Kentucky, there are miners, and there are operators, and executives belong in the latter category. To place them otherwise is an affront to real miners.

The National Republican Congressional Committee has an engaging but deceitful radio spot in which one older man tells another that Chandler ran an ad attacking a coal miner. While the graphics in Chandler's ad used "big lie" next to the coal executive's picture, the ad was attacking Barr.

The ads about the miner-turned-executive have given Barr and his allies some traction and more of an opening to go after Chandler on a substantive issue: his vote for the 2009 "cap and trade" bill that would have limited air pollution from coal-fired power plans, hurt the industry and raised electric rates. But they overstate their case to the point of falsehood.

Barr blames Chandler's vote for the industry's current problems, but the House-passed bill stalled in the Senate. It's fair to argue what the bill might have done, but not to act like it became law.

A mailer from the state Republican Party says Chandler and President Obama "even teamed up with the Environmental Protection Agency to impose stringent regulations on the coal industry in an effort to shut it down." Come on. Members of Congress don't pass regulations, and Chandler voted for a bill last month to negate some of the regulations.

At the heart of the coal-related attacks on Chandler-Obama is the biggest lie, that Obama's environmental policies are responsible for the 2,000-plus coal jobs Kentucky lost this year. Those layoffs stemmed mainly, perhaps only, from two things - last year's warm winter and resulting stockpiles of coal, and freshly abundant and cheap natural gas, to which coal-fired plants are switching. And metallurgical coal mines are being hurt by the economic slowdown in China.

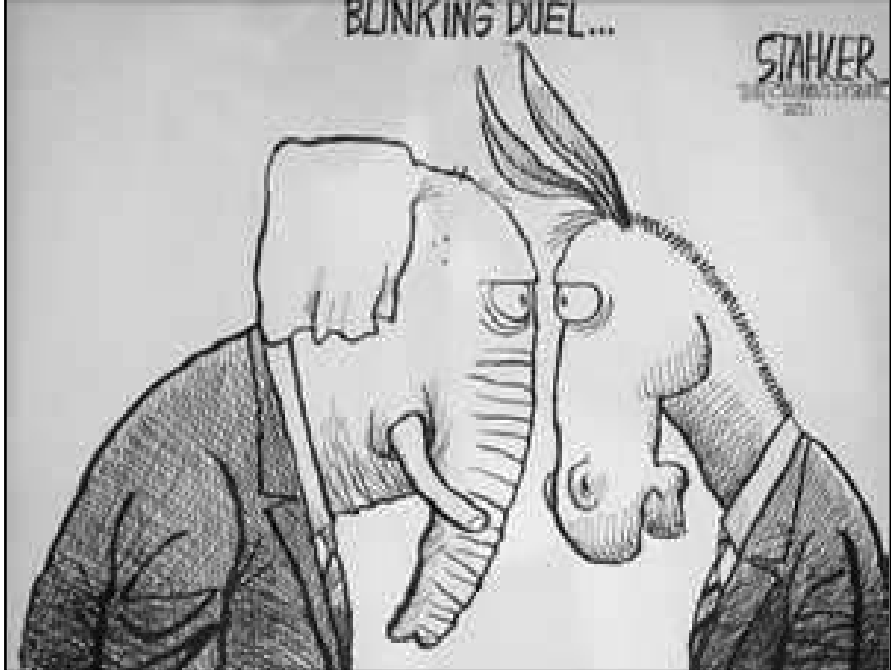

The most troubled coalfield is in Central Appalachia where mining has become more difficult and expensive mainly because most of the easily reachable coal reserves are gone. Alan Stagg, perhaps the most respected consultant to the Appalachian coal industry, says the region's problems have little to do with Obama and a lot to do with markets, technology and geology.

"Stagg is irked when those who are in a position to educate the public and help plan for the decline of Appalachian coal use its decline instead for political gain," wrote Pam Kasey of The State Journal, a business-oriented weekly in West Virginia. Stagg, a West Virginian, has been pessimistic about his home coalfield's future for years, but he appears gloomier than ever about it, and that should set off alarm bells - not just in coal county seats but in state capitals and Washington.

Thirty years ago, my friend Homer Marcum would ask almost every week in his old newspaper, The Martin Countian, "What do we do when the coal is gone?" He wanted his county and others in the coalfield to plan ahead but they and their state governments have done too little of that, and now it may be too late.

Deer

Saint-Blancard advises drivers to be cautious in the early morning and evening hours when deer are most active and to remember if you see one deer, there are probably more around because deer often travel in herds.

He also says it's important to remember deer are unpredictable, especially when faced with blinding headlights, loud horns and fast-moving vehicles.

Wildcats fall to Owen County

Mark Gray Sports Reporter
The Gallatin County Wildcat football team finished up district play on Friday with a loss at Owen County High School.

The Wildcats trailed only 13-6 at halftime, but the defense could not hold up as the Rebels rolled to a 59-22 win.

The defeat left Gallatin in fourth place in the district with a 1-3 record. The team is 5-4 overall.

Offense
Quarterback Austin Chapman completed 16 of 35 passes for 301 yards and two touchdowns. He also ran 16 times for 68 yards and a score.

Brady Lawrence had five catches for 104 yards and a touchdown. Chris Cunningham had two catches for 53 yards and a touchdown, and Nate McCoy added six receptions for 96 yards.

Running back Nick Brown had 14 carries for 50 yards and three catches for 48 yards.

Defense
Brown and Brennan Bishop led the defense with six tackles apiece. McCoy and Chris Brown had four apiece.

The Wildcats conclude the regular season on Friday when they travel to Bardstown Bethlehem.

Coach Tim Browning's team also knows their first round playoff opponent. For the second year in a row, they will play at Newport Catholic on Friday, November 2.

Looking for room to move

All eyes were on Gallatin County eighth grade language arts teacher Michelle Cravens (second from left) as she looked for room to pass skaters during her final roller derby contest last Saturday at NKU. Cravens, who skates under the name of Smashin' Punkin', had announced her retirement before the four-team tournament began. She scored 85 points that day to help her team, the Black-n-Bluegrass Roller Girls, win the event. Photo by Kelley Warnick

Sports in Kentucky

Hoops
Steven Hawking hasn't noticed, but Planet Basketball has returned to its rightful orbit in the heavens. A coaches preseason college poll reflects no sight or sound from Tobacco Road as Indiana, Louisville and Kentucky rank 1-2-3.

Could only happen in a David Anspaugh fiction (Hoosiers), right?

Golden Triangle. IU, UofL and UK ... top-heavy on top actors-for-television coaches too. Along the sidelines who is more marathon-man than Tom Crean? More yappy than Rick Pitino? Or, as "I don't believe this!" facial as John Calipari?

On court ... The top ranked Hoosiers are a marvelous mix of home-boy savvy, experience, and refined skill. Schedule? IU has enough custard pies on its early card to keep Bobby Plump and pals happy through Thanksgiving, all on television of course. North Carolina visits Bloomington a week after.

Number 2 Louisville is loaded. Led by best point guard in America, senior Peyton Siva is straw to stir the drink. The Cardinals' non-league schedule is cream puffy too, but streamlined for December 29, then March.

Early road dates at College of Charleston, Memphis, and Western Kentucky in Nashville should prime the Cardinals for a Yum Center on CBS date with Kentucky, December 29.

Number 3 Kentucky's one-and-dones will be tossed into the college game to learn on the road early against Maryland, Duke and Notre Dame. A lone high profile home date: Baylor will be primer for Louisville, then the SEC.

Bottom line? First rankings are of little value beyond media armed best with a metaphor. But a return focus upon college hoops Golden Triangle makes for barbershop buzz about Bloomington-Lexington-Louisville once again.

All of which leaves ACC ga-ga to Vitale and Big Ten renaissance to Dan Dakich.

WKU Football
The long and arduous climb back to football legitimacy by Western Kentucky is still a breaking story. Failure to seize-the-moment opportunity is setback.

Coach Willie Taggart's reaction to his Hilltoppers' come-from-ahead loss to Louisiana-Monroe Saturday was fraught with what ifs and if onlys, followed by the expected pragmatism: "WE just can't go out and beat ourselves. It's on us. It's all on us."

WKU's 43-42 homecoming loss to Louisiana-Monroe brought to mind other realities.

✓ Can't blow a three touchdown lead.

✓ Can't allow a team to drive 98 yards in two minutes.

1. Pro-life responses, but she is undecided when questioned about standing up to leadership that is pro-abortion. Undecided about sponsoring pro-life legislation.

2. Initial anti-casino expansion response, but stated that if elected she will vote to expand casino gambling in Kentucky. Gambling expansion is a two-step process that requires a constitutional amendment. Legislators must first go on record favoring expansion. Then if it passes both Houses by a 3/5ths majority, the question goes to the ballot for citizens to either reject or ratify.

Our friends and neighbors have surely been busy lately! First, the continuing saga of our Alaskan sojourners:

•The Bradleys and Meyungs drove to Skagway, Alaska through some very rugged and harsh snow-capped mountains. They discovered the Canadian and American customs buildings are about four miles from the actual border because the road area is so narrow and weather conditions can be so harsh on the mountain. Skagway was one of the first towns made famous during the Klondike Gold Rush of 1898. Thousands of men and women came by steamer up the Inside Passage, where they first set foot in Alaska, and the gold prospectors had to cross over the White Pass carrying 2,000 pounds of supplies. Our travelers took the famous Yukon White Pass Railroad up those rugged mountains. The train route was built to make the trip over the mountains easier for the prospectors, and was a civil engineering marvel, with tunnels, bridges, and cliff-hanging tracks. The town has maintained the same look from that famous time, with dirt streets and boardwalks around the same restored buildings. More on this adventure next week!

• Patsy Brown has just returned from an exciting trip to Virginia Beach, Virginia. She left on Thursday, October 18, accompanied by family members, to visit her brother-in-law, Ron Brown. On the way, they visited the Horse Park in Lexington and in Charlottesville, Virginia, went to the Walton's Mountain Museum where they saw John Boy's bedroom, took pictures, and browsed the gift shop. They spent the night in Lexington, Virginia; then drove on to Virginia Beach, arriving about 8 p.m., Friday evening, where Ron welcomed them and took them to dinner at a restaurant called Hot Tuna. Saturday morning found them walking the beach picking up shells, then Ron drove them around to see the sights. They did some shopping, had lunch at Catch-31 on the Boardwalk, and made chili for dinner that evening. Sunday morning found them once more on the beach, where they talked to some of the fishermen about their "catch of the day". Ron took the family members for an airplane ride, then they all visited Ron's daughter and son-in-law, Julie and Steve Swain, their young daughter, Aubrey, several of their friends, and Ron's other daughter, Chris Ford. They all enjoyed a cookout, and little Aubrey delighted everyone by singing "Let There Be Peace On Earth", accompanied on the piano by her mother. Patsy and family left for home about 9 a.m. Monday morning. On the way back, they stopped once again in Charlottesville and in Lexington, Virginia, and visited the museum and gift shop at Monticello. Patsy arrived at her sisters' home in Vevay about 10:30 Monday evening and spent the night before packing up her dogs and driving home the next morning. She said it was a great time, and is looking forward to going back.

Alice and Ron Johnson enjoyed Saturday evening, babysitting their two young grandsons, Colt and Corbin Johnson. They took the boys to Cracker Barrel for dinner, and said they were good as gold.

• Mary Jane Day has just returned from Lincoln, Nebraska, where she attended the wedding of her granddaughter, Tara, who married Zach Dolin. She was accompanied on the trip by her son, Randy Day, grandson, Blayne Day, and two granddaughters, Erica and Madilyn Day from Tennessee. Mary Jane said it was a great time and the wedding was beautiful. She got home in time to attend the Area Homemakers Meeting at Receptions on Tuesday, and the annual Tasting Bee on Friday at the extension office, both of which were huge successes. On Saturday, she attended the homecoming celebration at St. Joseph's, enjoying a bonfire, good music, and lots of delicious food. Mary Jane said it has been a busy month so far, and she is enjoying every minute of it!

• Shirley Chipman enjoyed dinner at the Yum Yum restaurant, Friday evening, accompanied by Joy Higgins, Faye Biddle, Mae Wallace, and Aileen Chipman. Shirley's Sunday dinner guests were Lanette Morrison; Derina, Savannah, and Autaum Doolin; and Jessica and Kendalyn Schrage. Ruthie Niebergall joined them later.

• Delores and Terry Hoperton had a fun-filled weekend! They spent Thursday through Sunday camping at Butler Park with Delores' sister and brother-in-law, Sandy and Jeff Perry, and family. It was one of the Halloween weekends at the park, so there were numerous activities for the children, who came on Saturday, as well as trick-or-treating in the campground. The group enjoyed crock pots filled with all kinds of soups and accompaniments, as well as savory cookies and cakes. Delores reports that they kept the campfires blazing, so all were warm and toasty. In all there were 24 family members and five visitors, including new baby, Molly, who napped in the camper. Everyone had a wonderful time, and now Delores is busy unpacking and looking with dismay at all the laundry, which she says is piled to the ceiling!

• Skeeter Braaten & Jackie Reed of Indianapolis were Thursday visitors in Gallatin County. While in town, they picked up Joann and went to M&T, shopping for a few early Christmas gifts. Returning to town, they stopped at Brenda's house to pick up Miss Lydia. While there, they enjoyed some chili, and also a brief visit with Evelyn Alexander. They then went to Warsaw to pick up Miss Emma at school and stopped by Hometown Pizza for a snack. After a visit to Candy Young's home and to drop off the girls, Skeeter and Jackie returned to Indianapolis with Carla Moore in tow.

• Friday evening, Brenda & Sidney Gullion and Sonja & Ernie Hopkins traveled to Indianapolis to spend the weekend with Skeeter & Steve Braaten. On Saturday morning, they all went out to breakfast and then traveled to Marysville, Indiana, to do some sight-seeing and attend the Covered Bridge Festival. They enjoyed the day, traveling throughout Indiana, shopping the numerous vendors set up, stopping at numerous yard sales, and eating entirely too much junk.

Returning to Indianapolis, they stopped to enjoy dinner in Avon. Saturday evening was spent talking about the day and good old visiting. Sunday morning, Skeeter cooked a big breakfast for all. The Gullion and Hopkins families departed around 1:00 with Carla Moore to return home. A great time was had by all!!

• The monthly book club met at the library last Wednesday, and members were pleased and excited to welcome Mr. Larry Hamilton, the author of the assigned book, Lucy's Story. Mr. Hamilton conducted a power-point presentation and information on book two of Lucy's Story, called Between Two Suns, which has been published and was made available to those who wished to purchase an autographed copy. Members were most interested to learn that the writer of the books, Christina DeLaet, was a student of Mr. Hamilton's, and the artwork was done by Mr. Hamilton's wife, Linda. The subject of the book, Lucy Ross, was Mr. Hamilton's great-great grandmother, and the Ross family actually lived here in Warsaw at the end of the nineteenth century before moving to Loveland, Ohio. Mr. Hamilton obtained his master's degree from Wright State University, and taught black history at Piqua High School. Attendees at the book club meeting this month were: Janet McGaha, Helen Walker, Bonnie McKee, Marie Allison, Jackie Neal, John Bennet, Lonni Faller, Mary Jo Mylor, Betty Wright, Mary Folz, and Larry Roberts. All agreed that the book was well written, most interesting, very enlightening, and considered a "good read", highly recommended by all. Next month's assigned book is Casino Royale, by Ian Fleming.

• Mary Rae Mattox spent Saturday night in Vevay with her sisters, Myrna Lozier, Rita Sample, and Marlene Lozier. They were joined, Sunday afternoon, by Patsy Brown and Ida Rose Howell. The ladies were celebrating the birthdays of Myrna and Ida Rose, and all had a wonderful time together. HAPPY BIRTHDAY, MYRNA AND IDA ROSE!

• I would like to say HAPPY BIRTHDAY to my dear little friend and neighbor, KAYLA BEACH, who celebrated her 12th birthday on October 18th, and to my dear grandson, TIM FALLER, who was 17 on October 21st.

Historical Society holds meeting

Above are some of the 40 people who attended the Gallatin Historical Society last Thursday night. A program about the Delta Queen was given by steamboat enthusiast Danny Back of Vevay, Ind. The Queen, built in California in the 1920's, was brought to the Mississippi River at New Orleans by way of the Panama Canal. The vessel was cited as a national monument and its name placed on the National Register in 1989. She now serves as a hotel in Tennessee.

The Hawkins Kirby House, home of the Historical Society, was decorated for the evening with a steamboat theme. Earl Richard Wood had provided and hung several prints, large and small, of the river and its steamboat traffic.

The meeting was conducted by president of the society, Darrell Maines, with reports from Betty Wright, secretary, and Jackie Mylor, treasurer. Photo by Clay Warnick

News from Gallatin Health Care

The Fall Festival and Haunted House at Gallatin Health Care on Friday evening was, again, a big success. I enjoyed taking part again this year and love my role. I receive great joy as I hold the hand of a little one who really wants to go in the haunted house, but is uncertain of what is in there! The smiles on the faces of all the residents and visitors, and the frightened screams and cries coming from the Haunted House, revealed its great success.

Hats off to all the employees who give countless hours of hard work to make sure the residents at Gallatin Health Care have a great Christmas.

A moment of tribute was paid to Donna Turner for all her efforts in designing the Haunted House, and for what it has become through the years. Her legacy will hang in a big frame in the main lobby as it was dedicated in her honor. She may have passed, but her memory is strongly felt and seen. Donna's husband, Randy Turner, was there and showed his deep appreciation for the gesture.

Everyone thanks Kelley Warnick for attending this year so that everyone who reads The Gallatin County News can see, through his camera lens, one of the best family events in Warsaw.

I did not have time to chat with the residents as I normally do when I'm at Gallatin Health Care, but I did keep busy taking groups through the Haunted House.

Prior to the start of the event, I took "Hattie the Witch" to Lula Hensley's room where I introduced them. Hattie is my friend from Dry Ridge, with whom I worked when I was at CitiBank. She has performed as Hattie the Witch for the past four years. The moment visitors step into the Haunted House, Hattie dares them to take a piece of her candy. Lula looks forward to seeing Hattie every year and this year her face was gleaming just like white snow on Christmas morning. It was another wonderful Kodak moment for me.

I will never forget your loyalty to me and the business.

God bless all of you!

Ask Doctor Dirt...

By David Hull

Dear Doctor Dirt,
Every fall, I pay perfectly good money for new mulch for the beds around my property. I usually do this immediately after I rake, bag, or burn bushels upon bushels of perfectly good leaves. Am I missing something here? Couldn't I just rake the leaves into the beds and kill two birds with one stone? Let me here.

B.S.
Warsaw

Dear B.S.,
It does seem odd doesn't it? Every fall, Mother Nature literally rains organic matter down onto our lawns and gardens; we're talking "mulch manna" here, and we usually dispose of it. Well, don't feel too guilty about it.

Leaves don't make the best mulch in the world. The problem is that it's easy to overdo it. Two or three inches of fallen leaves won't hurt anything, but a foot of leaves will! By their very nature, layers of leaves form a dense mat that won't allow water penetration or air movement into the soil. It can really choke-out the plants. Shredded leaves are less prone to this than whole leaves, but can still be a problem when overused.

What do I recommend? Go ahead and use leaves for mulching in fall. By spring or early summer they will have decomposed or blown away. Then come back in with your bark mulch to get you through the rest of the season.

What do you do with all the extra leaves? Composting is a good possibility. You can also apply a thick layer now to your vegetable garden plot. It'll keep down winter weeds and add organic matter for next spring.

Doctor Dirt is really David Hull, Gallatin County Extension Agent for Agriculture. If you have farm or garden questions for the good doctor, stop by or call the Extension Office at 567-5481. Or, email him at dhull@uky.edu.

WINTERIZE YOUR HOME

Provided by your Gallatin County Emergency Management Office
Barry Alexander, Director

Take the time now to get your home ready for the winter season by following these tips:

1. Have your heating system checked by a professional annually. This will ensure that your system is working safely and efficiently which, in turn, will save you money. If you heat by wood, lean your fireplace or stove. Have your chimney flue checked for any buildup of creosote and then cleaned to lessen the risk of fire.

2. Make sure your home is properly insulated. If necessary, insulate the walls and attic. This will help you to conserve energy and reduce your home's power demands for heat.

3. Caulk and weather-strip doors and windowsills to keep cold air out.

4. Install storm windows or cover windows with plastic from the inside. This will provide an extra layer of insulation, keeping more cold air out.

5. Inspect and flush your water heater.

6. Clean gutters. Leaves and other debris will hamper drainage.

7. Replace batteries of smoke, heat and carbon monoxide detectors. If you did not do it when you set the clocks back, do it now.

8. To keep pipes from freezing:

- Wrap pipes in insulation or layers of old newspapers.

- Cover the newspapers with plastic to keep out moisture.

- Let faucets drip a little to avoid freezing.

- Know how to shut off water valves.

Alcohol As A Drug

Alcohol is the most dangerous drug consumed by teenagers. In 2009 14.7 percent of teenagers ages 12 to 17 used alcohol and almost 11 percent engaged in binge or heavy drinking. The combination of alcohol and driving is especially deadly for teenagers. In 2007, vehicle accidents were the leading cause of death among those aged 15 to 20. Although this group accounts for only 6 percent of drivers, they accounted for 19 percent of fatal accidents. A total of 7,650 drivers or passengers aged 15 to 20 died in 2007. Over half -- 57 percent -- of the young drivers had measureable blood alcohol levels. The alcohol leads to dangerous decisions -- 75 percent of the young, drinking drivers who died had not fastened their seat belts. http://www.eshow.com/info_7871438_teen-deaths-drugs.html

ATTENTION ALL MEDICARE PART D RECIPIENTS

Beware of preferred networks and the impact they have on your ability to choose where you have your prescriptions filled.

Some plans have signed exclusive deals with Wal-Mart, CVS, Kroger and Walgreens that could SEVERELY LIMIT YOUR ABILITY to access your trusted locally - owned independent pharmacy.

In most cases, there are other plans you can choose that give you the God given freedom of choice that you deserve.

If you like the treatment you receive from your local pharmacy, the free delivery, the ability to talk to your pharmacists any time day or night, then you need to pay close attention to your plan choice this year.

Hunting packages available at Greenbo Park

Greenbo Lake State Resort Park in northeastern Kentucky is offering special lodging and hunting packages for deer and turkey hunters.

Packages include meals and lodging at the park's Jesse Stuart Lodge in Greenup County. Available hunts include archery-only deer hunts, or turkey hunts in the fall or spring seasons. These are not quota hunts, but are bonus hunts open to those who purchase the special package from the park.

"Greenbo State Resort Park is especially well-suited for hunting," said

Rick Mauro, northeastern region public lands wildlife biologist for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. "Deer and turkeys are abundant on the park's 3,250 acres of heavily forested habitat. State parks juggle many objectives including good stewardship of game populations. Hunting deer and turkeys not only provides recreational opportunity, but it also plays a key role in management of these species."

Deer hunting dates for 2012 include Nov. 1-4, Nov. 29-Dec. 2 and Dec.

13-16. These archery-only hunts offer a bonus opportunity, as two deer may be taken on bonus permits issued by Greenbo Lake State Resort Park. These permits do not count toward the statewide deer bag limit.

The two deer may be antlerless (female or button buck) or hunters may take one antlerless and one antlered deer (buck). This gives participating hunters a chance at harvesting an additional antlered deer.

The park also offers fall turkey shotgun hunts on Oct. 27-29 and Dec. 4-7. For next spring's turkey season, the park offers hunts on Apr. 15-17, 2013 and Apr. 22-24, 2013. Turkeys bagged during these hunts do count toward statewide bag limits.

Each hunt requires a separate package. Each package includes three days of hunting, three nights at the Jesse Stuart Lodge and breakfast, lunch and dinner each day. Packages cost $225 a person for double occupancy and $335 a person for single occupancy.

For more information on the Greenbo Lake State Resort Park hunting packages, email stephanie.poplin@ky.gov. For reservations, call 1-800-325-0083.

Six ways to learn something new

We've all heard of athletes who train for years before reaching their goal of winning a big competition, but have you heard of people who actively enhance their ability to remember and learn with innovative brain boosting strategies?

As millions of people move into middle age and grow older, many experience age-related changes like forgetfulness, difficulty concentrating, or memory lapses such as misplacing their car keys from time to time.

Some people work on improving their brain power by learning something new, for example: taking a class, working on difficult crossword puzzles or learning to play a musical instrument that requires concentration and focus.

Many people are looking for brand new strategies to help them improve their ability to learn and remember what they just learned.

The benefits of protecting our brain's health as we age are endless. Here are six exercises you can do to help boost your ability to learn and remember.

Pay sharp attention to what you want to remember. You can't remember something new if you're multi-tasking and are distracted.

Did you know it takes only 8 seconds or less to process a new piece of information and code it into your brain's storage system? But you can't do that if you aren't paying attention to that brand new information you want to retain.

Write down what you've learned. If you write it, either by typing or longhand, it may help imprint the information on your brain.

Involve the senses. Try to relate the information you're trying to remember to tastes, smells, colors, and textures. If you're a visual learner, this may help 'lock in' that new bit of information in your brain.

Make up your own acronyms. When you're memorizing a list of information like the names of all the Great Lakes, try memorizing them with a single word like "HOMES." That word connects the first letter of each lake's name: Huron, Ontario, Michigan, Erie, and Superior into one word that may help you remember each lake's name.

Review the information after you learn it. Instead of cramming to learn new information, review it the same day you learn it but leave time between remembering it and reviewing it.

Many people have an easier time recalling memories when they don't try to remember at lot of information all at once.

Work on understanding basic ideas first. If you're trying to memorize complex information, concentrate on the bigger ideas first then focus on the details later.

Think safety first during Halloween family festivities

Halloween is the second largest commercial holiday in the United States. There are fun and frightening activities to partake in this fall season, but keep in mind the following safety tips so festivities remain a treat for all.

Have a Safe Scare at a Haunted House

Haunted houses may be required to abide by fire and safety codes and may be subject to inspections before the general public is allowed to attend. Some may also be required to have a sprinkler system, early warning smoke or heat detectors, emergency lights, easy access doors, and other safety features. But regulations may not be the same in all areas and you are responsible for your own safety. To stay safe while visiting a haunted house:

- Take a flashlight with you. Even though the safety lighting might be fine for others, it may not be great for you.
- If you are going with small children, attach a glow stick to their clothing so they can be easily found in the dark.
- If there are stairs in the haunted house, be sure to use handrails and walk, do not run, up or down the stairs.
- If visiting a haunted house in a group, have a meeting place in case you get split up.
- Know where the exits are before entering the haunted house. Some attractions will provide you a map of the house so you are aware of where you are going when inside.
- Keep an adult in the front and rear of your group going through the haunted house to help monitor young children so they do not stray.

Don't Get Lost in the Corn Maze

Corn mazes are large fields of corn stalks, anywhere from a small field to more than 20 acres in size. They can be great fun if they are completed safely.

- Equip your group with flashlights and cell phones and try to stick together.
- Some mazes provide young children and groups with colored flags to wave in the air if they get lost. There are also mazes that have call boxes that will turn on a light to alert an attendant that you are lost or need assistance.

- Teach young children to not go outside of the maze's path. There may be a busy road or another unknown property beyond the corn stalks.

- Wear appropriate clothing and shoes as you will be outside. If the path is not wide, corn stalks may scratch your arms. Remember that rain can create muddy, slippery surfaces. Fallen corn stalks may also be a tripping hazard, so watch your step.

- Avoid smoking while in the maze as dry corn stalk could easily catch fire.

Hold on During the Hayride

Hayrides, whether haunted or not, can be a very enjoyable experience for any age. Sitting atop a truck, wagon or sleigh decorated with hay or straw is a great family tradition. Be sure to follow all signage at the hayride along with these tips:

- Be cautious when loading and unloading from the hayride. Make sure the hayride is at a complete stop before getting onboard or off. If there are steps, they could be slippery because of the hay or straw.
- Be careful when finding a place to sit. Your foot could easily slip between bales if you walk on them.
- Make sure everyone in your group is sitting at all times during the hayride and all arms and legs are kept inside the wagon.

- Hold on to small children and railings as bumps in the path could easily bounce you and them off of your seat.

- If the hayride is horse-drawn, be careful around the horse and do not approach it if the hayride operator states not to. If it is a tractor pulling the wagon, do not touch it as there are many handles and buttons that could accidentally be pushed. The tractor could also be hot from running for a long period.

- Do not walk in the hayride path. Stay in a safe, well-lit area when you are not riding.

Always remember to wear proper attire and footwear and plan for weather restrictions. Enjoy fall festivities by planning in advance and being safety-conscious.

Anticipation builds as deer season nears peak

It is mid-October and anticipation builds as Kentucky's deer season nears its peak: the opening of modern gun season.

This year's opening day on Nov. 10 is timed to coincide with the onset of the rut, the white-tailed deer's annual mating season.

Here are some observations at this stage of the season:

The archery harvest continues to make news. Hunters took a record 5,578 deer during September.

It was the first time the archery harvest during September exceeded 5,000 and the fifth straight year that archers achieved a record harvest during the opening month of bow season. The season harvest total by archers has also risen the past five years, from 13,941 in the 2007-2008 archery deer season to 18,170 last season.

"In the Zone 1 and Zone 2 counties it's important that there are more than 50 percent does in the harvest. This slows growth, improves sex ratios, and generally helps to stabilize herds," said Tina Brunjes, big game coordinator for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. "The continued harvest of does is a key component in our harvest strategy."

About 25 percent of successful deer hunters take two or more deer. The overall statewide harvest is expected to remain in the range of 110,000 to 120,000 deer a year, since the number of hunters is stable.

The overall age structure of the deer harvest indicates hunters are passing up young deer.

"The majority of antlered bucks taken during the 2011-12 season were at least 2 1/2 years old," said Brunjes. "Female age class distribution in the harvest was nearly identical. Most does taken were mature adults, 2 1/2 years old or older. The harvest of older does should be a priority to maintain a healthy, balanced herd."

Adult does are more likely to have twins and they tend to run off the yearling bucks in their range.

The trend of hunters passing on young deer is reflected by the statistics on trophy deer taken in Kentucky. These stats are compelling.

During the past three seasons, 172 deer reported to Kentucky Fish and Wildlife qualified for entry into the Boone & Crockett record book, including a record 68 taken during the 2011-2012 season deer season.

Last season, the trophy deer taken in Kentucky came from 44 different Kentucky counties. In the past three seasons, trophy deer have been harvested from 81 of 120 Kentucky counties.

Some of the Kentucky counties that produced the most Boone & Crockett record book deer the past three seasons include: Ohio and Whitley, seven deer; Casey, Greenup and Hardin, six deer; Boone and Owen, five deer; Christian, Lewis, Shelby and Todd, four deer, and Bracken, Campbell, Fulton, Gallatin, Henry, Kenton and McLean, three deer.

"Kentucky deer hunters have an opportunity to harvest trophy class deer in virtually any county," said Brunjes.

Despite the hot, dry summer, wildlife biologists found a statewide average of 52 percent of the white oaks and 66 percent of the red oaks produced acorns this year. "Based on what we observed, this year's mast crop is rated average for white oaks (40 to 59 percent of trees produced mast), and good for red oaks (60 to 79 percent)," said Ben Robinson, wildlife biologist for Kentucky Fish and Wildlife.

Drunken drivers can't hide behind Halloween costumes

As party-going ghosts and goblins celebrate Halloween this October, the Kentucky Office of Highway Safety (KOHS) reminds everyone to keep the party off the road.

"There isn't a Halloween costume clever enough to hide an impaired driver who has made the poor decision to get behind the wheel," said KOHS Director of Highway Safety Bill Bell. "Whether you've had one too many or way too many it is just not worth the risk. Remember, Buzzed driving is drunk driving."

Nighttime is an especially dangerous time to be on the road, but Halloween night is often one of the deadliest nights of the year for impaired drivers. According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, in 2009, 48 percent of all highway fatalities across the nation on Halloween night (6 p.m. Oct. 31 to 5:59 a.m. Nov. 1) involved a driver or a motorcycle rider with a Blood Alcohol Concentration of 0.08 or higher, which is illegal in every state.

"Don't make Halloween an event to forget by driving drunk," said Bell. "It's a fact that, too often, impaired drivers don't plan ahead and end up making the roads scarier than their costumes."

The KOHS recommends these simple tips for a safe Halloween:

Plan a safe way home before the festivities begin;

Before drinking, designate a sober driver;

If you're impaired, use a taxi, call a sober friend or family member, or use public transportation;

If you happen to see a drunk driver on the road, don't hesitate to contact local law enforcement;

And remember, Friends Don't Let Friends Drive Drunk. If you know someone who is about to drive or ride while impaired, take their keys and help them make other arrangements to get to where they are going safely.
